

A COURSE IN MIRACLES (ACIM)

What is ACIM?

A Course in Miracles is a book written and edited by Helen Schucman who channeled Jesus, with portions transcribed and edited by William Thetford.

It contains a self-study curriculum to bring about “spiritual transformation.”

Jon Mundy is the perfect person to introduce the topic of A Course in Miracles to beginners and well-versed students of the Course as well. Literally beginning with the opening lines, Jon continues to explain the origins of the Course itself, with which he was involved almost from the very beginning when it was first introduced by Helen Schucman, the scribe who channeled the Course, and whom Jon had known personally.

Jon sparked some genuinely intensive discussion in the second part of this presentation. Fielding several questions from students, among the topics dealt with were innocence versus wrong choices, the idea that there are "no accidents," and what that implies in the death of children or apparent victims of tragedy, questions about what survives after death, the role of the individual, and several ethical and moral conundrums were explored.
